

Illuminated Heritage

Hand-stitched mirror work from Karachi to your living room.

Watch what happens when sunlight hits these cushions.

Ordinary Room

Hundreds of tiny mirrors catch the light and scatter it, turning an ordinary space into something that glows.

Illuminated Room

Stitched by hand, one mirror at a time.

Layer 3 (The Halo):
Surrounding intricate embroidery integrating the mirror into the fabric.

Layer 2 (The Anchor): Interwoven thread holding the glass in place. Securely bound by hand, never glued.

Layer 1 (The Core):
Reflective glass. Not plastic, not printed.

This is shisha mirror work—an ancient South Asian craft preserved by family artisans.

Three full days of continuous craftsmanship for a single cover.

This is living heritage—slow, skilled, and made with love by our artisans in Karachi.

Centuries of South Asian folklore woven into your home.

In folk tradition, each tiny mirror acts as a shield to reflect away negative energy and invite good fortune into the home.

A piece of South Asian soul, not a factory commodity.
